

Hello,

My name is Jasmine Frantz. I am really excited about the Jr. Rails developer position open at "Annkissam".

I am passionate about what I choose to do and I work hard for it. My love for art and fascination for technology got me interested in Computer Animation when I was a in high school, which brought me here to the States at the age of 18 to pursue Computer Animation at Ringling College of Art and Design.

After more than a decade working in the 3D animation field, Web Development piqued my interest when I started to explore its inner workings and discovered its vast platform and limitless freedom to seamlessly combine art and technology. Since fostering an interest in Web Development, I dove into HTML, CSS, and WordPress, and built several sites for small businesses. I then wanted to get deeper and expand my knowledge, as it is such a quickly evolving industry, so I enrolled in The Iron Yard for its 12 week immersive course in Ruby on Rails backend engineering, and successfully completed the course. Throughout those 12 intense weeks, as difficult as it was, I enjoyed every single moment. Through various coding exercises, I was quite pleased to reconfirm how creativity, artistry, and critical thinking do matter in this field, and how rewarding it is to find a beautiful solution to a complex problem or task.

Attached is my resume and link to my portfolio site, also you can view further examples on my Github. www.github.com/dubistdu

Throughout the years in my past profession, I learned how to work with many various types of working environments and situations. Also, learning a new technology has become part of my life. As I am taking on a new professional path, I cannot wait to meet, work with, and learn from the other professionals in this field and share the same passion and enthusiasm and also learn to become a better developer.

I am excited to learn more about the Full Stack Ruby On Rails engineer position, and I look forward to hearing from you soon,

Thanking you,

Jasmine
